

7 Rules for Calmer Money

A two-page reset for people who want less financial noise without turning life into a spreadsheet.

1 Annualize recurring costs.

Monthly prices hide the real decision. Multiply recurring costs by 12 before deciding whether they still deserve a place.

2 Know three numbers.

Money in. Money that must go out. Money that is actually free to decide.

3 Pause unplanned purchases.

If it is not urgent and not planned, give it one night. Most wants become easier to judge with time.

4 Separate fixed from flexible.

Rent behaves differently from restaurants. Do not manage commitments and choices with the same rule.

5 Prepare for predictable surprises.

Annual renewals, gifts, repairs, school costs and travel are not surprises if they happen every year.

6 Add useful friction.

Remove saved cards from impulse-shopping apps. Make the bad decision slightly harder and the good decision slightly easier.

7 Review for ten minutes every week.

Check balances, the next seven days of bills, one flexible category and one correction. Then stop.

Want the full system?

The 30-Day Money Clarity Reset includes a recurring-cost audit, bills calendar, purchase filter, irregular-expense plan, debt map for organization, 30-day tracker and monthly reset page.

vivianledger.com / link in bio

Educational organization tool only. Not financial, investment, tax, legal, credit-repair or debt-counseling advice. No guarantees of savings or other outcomes. © 2026 Vivian Ledger.